Write about a time when something worked well because you did the steps in the right order or when something went wrong because you did not get things in the write order.

This can be a true piece (non fiction) but if you need to make it up (fiction) that is OK. It can be in the 1st person but you can also write it about somebody else's experience (real or imaginary).

Please remember to check your work before submitting. Look for errors in capitalization, run-on sentences, punctuation, lack of paragraphs and other convention errors.
